Study in Detmold

The Detmolder school for architecture and interior architecture distinguishes itself by rich variety which arises from his both courses of studies interior architecture and architecture.

In the tension field of art and technology, theory and craft practise, rationally to planning up to the creative experiment there is to discover an extremely wide spectrum of activities. To the buildings of a town resembling each of these fields has his own character. To discover this town tells to experience the atmosphere of every building. In it we see the quality of a living education for architecture.

This education is carried by 17 professors and female professors for the interior architecture and other 11 who teach architecture in the course of studies.

The study in Detmold is marked by the following main focuses:

- The deepening consideration of the interaction of space, building, town.
- The interdisciplinary cooperation.
- The internationalisation with university cooperations in Brazil, China, Italy, Korea, Norway and Poland.
- The comprehensive, formatively and practically oriented study.
- The possibility of the combination of the study of architecture and interior architecture.
- To specialise the possibility within the study and to profile.
